Better known as half of Fischli/Weiss, the wry conceptualist duo whose work often questioned the nature of things, David Weiss (1946–2012) pursued his own art throughout his 33-year partnership with fellow Swiss artist Peter Fischli. Largely unseen during his life, Weiss's solo efforts are characterized by the same spirit of ironic whimsy found in the videos, sculptures and installations produced by Fischli/Weiss. The works on paper presented here provide a rare look at this aspect of his career.
