New York City galleries fill up with furniture. This time it's not the seating, it's the show

For its second annual Architecture and Design Series, Swiss Institute has tapped Pin-Up magazine's Felix Burrichter to curate "A 21st-Century Show Home." A riff on the Pavillon de l'Esprit Nouveau—a show house Le Corbusier created for the 1925 Paris Exposition des Arts Décoratifs that appeared revolutionary for its ideas about mass production and home mechanization—Burrichter's rendition features works by more than 30 artists and designers who push the boundaries of design today. September 24 through November 8 at Swiss Institute, 18 Wooster Street; swissinstitute.net
